COLLECTION DATES: 1956-1993

VOLUME: 2.82 linear feet

ACCESS: This collection is open for research

PREPARED BY: Lizette Royer, July 2007

Biographical Note

Richard Stanley Lazarus was born in New York City on March 3, 1922. He graduated from the City College of New York in 1942 and then served in the army for three and a half years. He earned his doctorate degree from the University of Pittsburgh in 1948 under Roger Russell. Lazarus accepted his first academic appointment at Johns Hopkins University in 1948. Later he accepted a position at Clark University (1953-1959). As a Diplomate in Clinical Psychology, Lazarus also directed the clinical training program at Clark. Lazarus took a position at the University of California at Berkeley in 1959 and remained there until his retirement in 1991. Upon retirement he was named Professor Emeritus.

Lazarus is best known for his work in the field of psychological stress and coping. In 1966 he published Psychological Stress and the Coping Process; by the 1970s work in the field began to grow and the monograph became a classic work. Lazarus's theoretical approach to stress, the idea that people appraise or evaluate whatever happens in their lives with respect to its significance for their well being, eventually came to dominate the field. During the late 1950s he organized the Berkeley Stress and Coping Project which, through grant support, continued well into the 1980s. Lazarus published more than 150 scholarly works including 20 books, five of which were published after he retired.

Lazarus received numerous awards including a Guggenheim Fellowship in 1969. In 1984 The California Psychological Association recognized him for distinguished scientific contributions to psychology and in 1989 the American Psychological Association awarded him the Distinguished Scientific Contribution Award. Lazarus also received two honorary doctorates, one in 1988 from the Johannes Gutenberg University in Mainz, Germany and the second in 1995 from Haifa University in Haifa, Israel. Lazarus died November 24, 2002.

Scope and Content

The Richard S. Lazarus Papers are organized in the following series:

1. Biographical Material
2. Correspondence
3. Teaching Materials
4. Presentations and Addresses
5. Papers and Publications
6. Research and Grants
7. Non-Textual Materials

The majority of the material is during Lazarus' appointment at The University of California at Berkeley. Lazarus's work at Berkeley focused on psychological stress and coping, and many drafts of papers and research projects are housed within the collection. All correspondence and copyright agreements pertaining to those papers and publications are also included in Series 5. Also of interest are the numerous drafts and related correspondence for the many presentations and addresses Lazarus gave around the world throughout his career.

Biographical information and material pertaining to Lazarus's career both before and after his time at UC Berkeley is very limited. Most of the folders, with the exception of Series 1 and Series 2, are labeled as Lazarus originally labeled them before depositing them at the Archives of the History of American Psychology.

Series Descriptions

1. Biographical Material

Series contains Lazarus's curriculum vitae and a biographical nomination sketch for the Distinguished Scientific Contribution Award.

2. Correspondence

Series includes both personal and general professional correspondence not categorized in series 4-6.

3. Teaching Materials

Series consists of both typed and handwritten lecture notes, exams, and various other materials related to Lazarus' work as an instructor of psychology.

4. Presentations and Addresses

Series includes various drafts of papers that Lazarus presented at numerous venues. Also included are all correspondence, conference materials, and other information that pertain to the presentations.

5. Papers and Publications

Series contains drafts of papers that Lazarus later published and correspondence pertaining to the publications between Lazarus and his co-authors as well as publishing companies and journal editors. Also included are copyright agreements and blind reviews for some of the papers.

6. Research and Grants

Series consists of various grant proposals and correspondence between Lazarus and his research colleagues as well as the grant-giving institutions. Also included are specific project outlines and notes.

7. Non-Textual Materials

Series includes several slides Lazarus used during a 1981 conference, The Nature and Function of Emotion, and three large negatives depicting charts that are assumed to have been printed in a paper or publication. Also included are eleven reels of film. Please refer to the Still Images Database for information regarding the slides and negatives. Please refer to the Moving Images Database for information regarding the film including content, format and location.
