

Resources for Teaching and Talking About Katrina and the Aftermath

- American Sociological Association Katrina webpage:
<http://www.asanet.org/page.wv?section=ExecOffice&name=Hurricane+Katrina>
- "Katrina in Perspective: The disaster raises key questions about the role of government in American society" by Peter Dreier <http://www.commondreams.org/views05/0915-27.htm>
- Understanding Katrina: Perspectives from the Social Sciences:
<http://understandingkatrina.ssrc.org/>
- Teaching about Hurricane Katrina: Resources for Faculty (and Students)
<http://www.public.asu.edu/~yma14/Katrina/Overviews.htm>
- Nonprofit Quarterly, Special Issue on Katrina
<http://www.nonprofitquarterly.org/section/750.html>
- An independently-produced short documentary about grassroots organizing to provide housing and other support for evacuees who are relocating to Madison is now available. The film is 15 minutes long and would work well for stimulating classroom discussions about community responses to the disaster." (Tona Williams, filmmaker and sociologist). If you'd like more information, you can go to: <http://tona.bigbite.org/film/relief.html>
- Web slide show of New Orleans in the throes of Hurricane Katrina:
<http://gmagic.com/katrina/>
- "Report from New Orleans" by Chester Hartmann -
http://www.prrac.org/full\_text.php?text\_id=1056&item\_id=9654&newsletter\_id=84&header=Homelessness
- NCSA member Rachel E. Sullivan's blog site with several relevant posts about Hurricane Katrina. <http://www.rachelstavern.com>